

THE TAX PROTEST LOVE ROMP IN LONDON: WHEN COMPLAINING REALLY PAYS OFF

A romantic romp through St Paul's during London's Occupy protest of 2011. Jill St-Jane comes to a crossroads when the dashing Baron Chilcote blasts back into her world during the wildest tax demonstration London has ever witnessed. Artists, protesters, campaigners, politicians, London bankers, Romanian love rivals, tax-specialists, love-in specialists, bishops, spies, and Norwegian businessmen become embroiled in a love-laced web of intrigue. The Tax Protest Love Romp in...

Peek Inside the Book

Her insides began to roar with a ferocious explosion of sensation and entitlement. For a moment, her thinking mind know this was what male and females were put on earth to do. Lisa McKnight, The Tax Protest Love Romp in London: when complaining REALLY pays off //

Reader's Opinions

Chapter Eleven: "The first moment Jill St-Jane met Gordon Chilcote gave her many sleepless nights. Nights that were full of extremely pleasant thoughts that no young lady was meant to vocalise in public."
